The Arizona Department of Transportation is putting out a "help wanted" sign for construction companies.

The department said Wednesday it will advertise this week for bids for contracts for 14 highway projects being funded through federal stimulus money.

The projects include widening a section of Interstate 10 west of Phoenix and paving an I-10 segment near Tucson as well as safety improvements on Arizona 87 between Payson and Pine.

The 14 projects carry an estimated pricetag of $85.7 million and are the first of 41 statewide that the Transportation Board recently approved using $350 million in stimulus funding.

ADOT said the remaining 27 projects will be advertised "in the near future."
